

The Emmys® May Be Over, But The “Salute To TV Memories” Exhibit Lives On

Los Angeles, October 17, 2012 – “I Love Lucy,” and “I Dream of Jeannie” are just samples of the television classics spotlighted in the “Salute to TV Memories” Exhibit coming to The Hollywood Museum, the official Museum of Hollywood, on November 7. This exhibit, honoring the magic of television and spotlighting the TV memories that have captured the hearts of Americans over the past 60 years, showcases the largest selection of costumes and props from more than 40 television shows. The exhibit is on display through December 23, 2012. The Hollywood Museum is located in the Historic Max Factor Building, 1660 N. Highland Avenue at Hollywood Blvd. www.TheHollywoodMuseum.com.

“So many memorable icons like Jeannie’s bottle or Ricky Ricardo’s bongo drums bring back nostalgia of the television shows and the legendary stars that we have all known and loved throughout the years,” said Donelle Dadigan, President of The Hollywood Museum. “We are preserving these memories for fans of all ages to enjoy.”
